Description/description Agriteam Canada Consulting was established by Robert Francis in 1986 and has since designed and implemented more than 170 projects worldwide in sectors including health and population; gender equality; education and education reform; agriculture and agribusiness; community development; governance and public sector reform; private sector development; legal and judicial reform; corporate social responsibility; and environment. Agriteam provides management and technical expertise to developing and transitional country partners on projects that promote sustainable growth and meaningful opportunities for people to improve their lives. In order to achieve this, they prioritize local ownership and capacity development and encourage participation and collaboration. In addition, integrating capacity building to project design and implementation contributes to the long term sustainability of projects.
Candidate's Statement/Énoncé du candidat I believe there is no policy lobbying organization in Canada representing the Canadian development constituency and I think CAIDC is the appropriate organization to fulfill that void. It is for this reason that I have decided to stand for a position on the board.
